The student may need to purchase additional materials for this course to provide concrete learning experiences for children.

VI. METHODS OF INSTRUCTION

The student is expected to take the primary responsibility for their own learning by being an active participant in the classroom. The student is provided the opportunity to have actual experiences with children and staff in an early childhood program. Presentation will include, but not be limited to demonstration, discussion, and observation. Students may be required to provide videotapes of teaching demonstrations. Interactive sessions (held in person or electronically) will encourage students to examine their experiences and get feedback from others. Individual conferences (held in person, electronically, or by phone) with the instructor will help support and guide the students toward improved skills in a toddler early childhood setting.

VII. METHODS OF EVALUATION

Student evaluation will be based on attendance, observation and feedback from the cooperating teacher, self-reflections and self-evaluations using criteria established by the college instructor. Students will be assessed on the quality of the plans and materials utilized to implement experiences for infants and toddlers, their involvement and interaction with children and adults, their communication with staff, children and parents and on their professional and ethical behaviors and attitudes.

Through practicum experiences, students are being trained as potential employees in the early childhood profession. Employability is based not only on working skills but also on attendance, punctuality, dependability, and attitude. The student's scheduled time in practicum is very important. It is of extreme importance that students be present and on time. The children and staff are depending on students as an important part of the total program team. Employment skills will be part of the overall assessment for this class.

Other evaluations may include: observation from the on-site supervisor, reflection journals, and self-evaluation using an evaluation instrument provided by the instructor. Students will be assessed on the quality and developmentally appropriateness of the plans and materials utilized to implement experiences for children. Students will also be assessed based upon their communication with children, families, and colleagues in the toddler setting.
